5 Convicted Of Break-Ins 1 Sentenced To 15 Months

Four youths, arrested following a serious of break-ins in the Haliburton and Minden area, have all been given suspended sentences. A fifth young man appearing before magistrate Moore today drew a jail term.

They are Arthur Daniels, Albert Cameron, Roger LaBoutillier, Michael Pearsell and Llwellyn Mitchell.

All were given two year suspended sentence with the exception of Daniels. "You're over 21 and you haven't learned your lesson yet," the magistrate told him. He also made reference to the fact that Daniels was dishonorably discharged out of the army after having served for two years there. He was sentenced to 15 months in the Ontario reformatory on charges of breaking, entering, and theft. He was also given concurrent sentences on convictions under the Liquor Control Act and the Highway Traffic Act.

A sixth young man involved, Bruce McGuire, is expected to appear Friday for sentence.

Included in the goods recovered following the arrest of the gang were several hub caps, a gun and many other articles.

C.ofC. Elects New President

At a meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, October 5, Robert J. Bishop Sr. was elected to the office of president, thus filling the position held by F. H. Brooks of Minden for the past five years. To Mr. Brooks we would like to say thanks for heading the chamber so ably during his long term of office, and at the same time extend a welcome to Mr. Bishop as he takes over the leadership of this county organization.

Robert J. (Bob) Bishop was born at Niagara Falls.

Night School Opens Jan. 3

The night school classes this year will be held during the winter season intsead of the fall and winter terms which have been in operation during the last two years.

It is hoped that this change in time will stimulate interest in night school so that a greater variety of courses may be given.

Considerable interest has been shown already in the night school classes and a number of inquiries have been received for courses in academic subjects such as English, history and mathematics.

If there are sufficient registrations received in such classes they would be offered this year. A minimum of 10 students is required to commence a class in any subject.

Preliminary registration forms will be published in the Echo in early December and registration forms will be again distributed through the elementary schools of the district. Further information about the classes will be issued in a later edition of the Echo.

In the meantime, prospective students should direct inquiries to the high school office.

Many View New Funeral Home

On Wednesday evening last, despite inclement weather and numerous other events taking place, citizens from all over the district availed themselves of the invitation to view the new funeral home of John Welch & Son at Minden.

All those present were greatly impressed with the design and beauty of the new ediface. The firm of John Welch & Son have long been known for their efforts to provide the finest services possible for those bereaved.

The construction of this fine new funeral home is not only a progressive step but it will greatly aid in making the burden of sorrow a little lighter for those who will avail themselves of the services it is designed to afford.

Prior to the service of dedication Mr. Welch voiced his appreciation to those who were so kind as to honor the event with their presence noting that many had come quite some distance. Frank also expressed his thanks to the contractor and builders for their excellent workmanship which had contributed so much to the construction of this beautiful building.

The dedication service was conducted by Rev. J. M. Fleming and during his remarks he stated that when he came to Minden in 1937 it might be referred to as a backwoods village. However, said the speaker, since that time great progress had been and was being made and the building of this new funeral home which he described as a building of par excellence was a great step forward.

The soloist for the occasion was Mrs. Lorne Coburn whose rendition of that beautiful number "God Bless This House" was greatly appreciated. It was not only well rendered but most appropriate for such an event as this.

At the conclusion of the service Mr. Welch entertained his guests at his home to coffee, sandwiches and cake. Caterers for the occasion were the Girls Guild of St. Paul's church.

To Frank Welch who has at last realized a dream come true with the completion of this, the most modern and beautiful funeral home that we ever had the opportunity of viewing, we offer our sincere congratulations.

1,639 Sign Railway Petition

A petition bearing 1,639 names is being forwarded to the Board of Transport commissioners requesting that tri-weekly train service be restored on the Lindsay-Haliburton line of the Canadian National Railways.

A strong letter is being sent along with the petition in the hope that those in authority will get rail service back to normal again.

Quite a number of businessmen and industries in this area have made use of the railway facilities as far as freight and express are concerned and are still willing to do so under tri-weekly service.

However, if the railway authorities think that they can send a train up here just any time they see fit and still receive our aptronage, they are, we think, due for a rude awakening.

The Echo feels that it can speak with authority on this subject in the light of what happened to us last month. On Tuesday, September 6 we had a shipment of paper leave the Union Station express depot in Toronto, but due to the present jumbled railway service we received the parcel on Monday, September 12.

Any business enterprise in this day and age that is not capable of giving service will have a short life. The people in this area have every right to expect that the CNR will maintain tri-weekly service on the Lindsay-Haliburton line. If such service is not resumed as requested by the many who signed the petition we will be forced to conclude that those who are in charge of railway services wish to get rid of this branch of the railroad.

The Salvation Army young people's band of Peterboro is one of the best bands of its kind in this part of Ontario. It is made up of young boys between the ages of eight and 16. There are 25 such boys in this band which is under the leadership of band leader G. Weller.

The members do not just play instruments but sing together as a boys choir. There is also amongst the boys a vibraphone soloist who will be bringing items upon this unusual instrument.

The band will be in attendance at the Sunday meetings, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m. in the Salvation Army, Haliburton on Sunday, October 30.

They will be presenting a "Festival of Music" as 2.30 p.m. Sunday afternoon in the Salvation Army hall.

Local Garage Broken Into

Thieves succeeded in gaining entrance to Curry Motors early Sunday morning and while the cash loot was not very large—$4.85 to be exact, other goods stolen will make the loss considerable.

When they could not gain entrance to the safe they smashed the handle off and apparently took it for a souvenir as it has not been found as yet.

After helping themselves to a quantity of cigars and cigarettes, they secured a key off the used car rack and made off with a 1956 Ford car.

As yet there are no clues as to who the guilty parties are.

Fined On Common Assault Charge

Conviction on common assault charge cost a Haliburton man $71.80 or 28 days in Lindsay magistrate's court Wednesday morning.

James Hunter Jr. pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault upon Mrs. Greta Sawyer, a restaurant waitress in the village of Haliburton.

Mrs. Sawyer testified that Mr. Hunter called her many abusive names, and also pushed her against a counter, which resulted in an arm injury.

Defence lawyer for Mr. Hunter quipped "In an altercation with a woman, Mr. Hunter has yet to learn that he can't win."

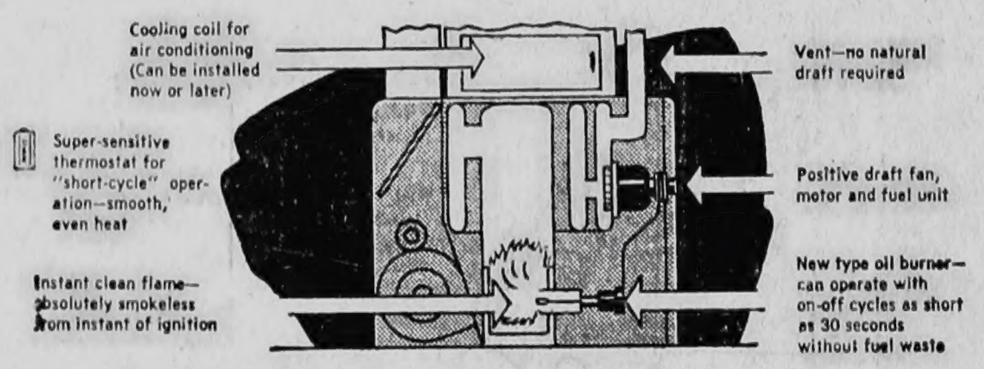
developed by Iron Fireman...revolutionizes oil heating...greatest advance in years!



Iron Fireman CUSTOM Mark II oil furnace with instant clean flame. Unequaled for clean comfort, low fuel bills and trouble-free performance

Comfort
With the Iron Fireman CUSTOM Mark II furnace you use a supersensitive thermostat which operates the furnace with the slightest variation of room temperature. This gives you shorter, more frequent firing periods, with remarkably uniform indoor temperature. No matter how often the furnace starts, the flame instantly burns clean—no smoke, no soot, no fouled combustion chamber, no wasted oil.

Trouble-free operation
Cuts service calls to the vanishing point. No burner adjustment required; no draft troubles; no soot-fouled furnace or carbon clogged nozzle.

Operates without chimney draft
The CUSTOM Mark II furnace provides its own positive induced draft with precision control. No natural chimney draft required.

Cleanliness
With the instant clean flame there are no flecks of soot blowing from your chimney or escaping into your home. Hundreds of tests made with smoke-detecting instruments show a flame that's absolutely clean from the very moment it's turned on.

Down go fuel bills
Owners of Iron Fireman CUSTOM Mark II furnaces report remarkable fuel savings. Instant clean flame eliminates wasteful smoky warm-up period.

Quiet
The easy-burning globular flame is a pleasant change from the blowtorch roar of the conventional oil burner. Fan has resilient mountings to dampen vibration and is sized for large capacity at low, quiet speeds.

A COUNTRY ROAD

Away from the rush of the city,
Where a body can find some fresh air.
Birds sing all day, be it sunny or gray,
There is time in our hearts for a prayer.
A gay hello from a neighbor,
The sound of a car on the road,
A smile from a perfect stranger,
Makes you feel you are close to God.
Night closing in like a curtain,
To shelter the tired weary one
Safe by his own fireside,
After the day's work is done.
Let your prayer be one of thanksgiving
For the joys that were bestowed,
The sky above or a soft gentle rain,
And the peace of a country road.

—Ann Cummins.

SUPERINTENDENTS ADDRESS AT ENGINE DEDICATION

The following are the remarks of Mr. A. R. Wilson, superintendent, Belleville, Canadian National Railways, at the presentation of CNR locomotive No. 2616 to the Rotary Club of Haliburton on Saturday, October 1, 1960.

"It is indeed a great pleasure for me to be present in this beautiful resort area of Haliburton, and I appreciate greatly the warmth of your hospitality on this as on former occasions.

With the presentation of this locomotive to your Rotary club today, we are, in effect, marking the end of an era in both Canadian and and CNR history.

This veteran engine, No. 2616, technically known as class N4A, came out of the Brooks Locomotive Co. shops in Schenectady, N.Y., for service with the Grand Trunk Railway in 1911. With her original number of 767, she represented the last word in motive power and transportation at that time.

She has had a varied history. Originally she was in mainline service on our eastern lines. In 1926 she went into service at Allandale and in 1929 came into action at Lindsay where she was assigned to the Belleville-Lindsay wayfreight.

She was certainly a familiar sight to residents along that line, for she served there continuously for 17 years, except for periods when she went into the shops for a "sprucing up."

There are several things that are unique about her. For instance during the major portion of the 17 years she pulled the Belleville-Lindsay wayfreight she was operated by engineer Fred Varcoes of Lindsay. Of particular interest is the fact that during the approximately 30 years she was in service and operating out of Lindsay, there is no record of her ever having a breakdown in service or losing time because of mechanical failure—an exceptional record for a steam locomotive over such a long period of time.

At the end of her career, locomotive No. 2616 made her last trip in service from Lindsay to Belleville on train No. 456, January 7, 1959.

Now, here she stands, a proud symbol of an era in which steam was queen of the rails. We hope the things she repreesnts will stand as a constant reminder to ourselves and our children of the forces that turned Canada from an adolescent nation into an agricultural and industrial giant.

It gives me great pleasure, therefore, on behalf of the Canadian National Railways to present this scroll covering the transfer of No. 2616 from the roster of the Canadian National Railways to the Rotary Club of Haliburton.

IN QUEST OF YESTERDAY

A HISTORY OF HALIBURTON

by NILA REYNOLDS

Sixteenth Instalment
WHEN PINE WAS KING
Chapter 8

Large concerns like Boyd and Irwin might run anywhere from 10 to 20 individual shantys under the direction of one bush superintendent like Norman Barnhardt who supervised the whole operation from the depot camp. The foreman at Boyd's depot camp at Fort Irwin in Harburn township was "Black Alick" McDonald whose feats of strength and physical prowess almost equalled Norman Barnhardt's own. At the depot camp also resided the chief clerk who kept all the records of supplies issued to the individual camps and the timber produced in return. In each shanty a clerk tallyed the pieces of timber produced and kept the time sheets for the 50 men employed there.

Going to the camp in the fall was a quiet affair compared to the spring break up when the thirsty loggers hastened at top speed to the nearest hotel at Kinmount, Minden, Gooderham or Haliburton where they squandered their hard earned wages on liquid trouble which sometimes sold for as low as $1.50 for two gallons. During these sprees the winter's differences which had arisen between the men were settled with fist and boot. Many a poor lad bore the scars of these free-for-alls for the rest of his life. To record such battles would take a stomach as strong as an ox, the language of a shanty boss and all the pages of the Encyclopedia Brittanica.

Fortunately for all concerned the returning loggers were too broke to indulge their thirst. However there are legends of men shanghied by unscrupulous foremen who plied them with strong waters until they sank into unconsciousness. When the duped one awoke he found himself, in company with several dozen similar unfortunates, on a speeding sleigh enroute for a camp maybe 50 miles distant.

In the fall the first job facing a logging gang in new timber was the erection of a cook shanty and stables. A camboose camp descriped by George Thompson in his "Life of a Lumberman" was 40 feet square with walls of large pine notched and dovetailed together six logs high topped from end to end with enormous stringers which held up a roof built of pine or cedar scoops hollowed from halved logs. These constituted the greatest expense in a shanty's construction.

The walls and roof of the interior were chinked with moss while the exterior was plastered with mud. An opening eight feet square in the centre of the roof carried off the smoke from the central fireplace and sand oven and admitted light in the daytime. At night the roaring fire which took half a cord of wood to build provided illumination enough.

The men rarely benefitted from the light in the roof during the day for the shanty motto previous to the turn of the century was "Turn out boys! Four meals a day and all the daylight going!"

Sometimes a floor of logs was laid but more often the hard packed earth had to serve. A five foot square door provided entrance and bunks built of poles lined one side and the end. An unwritten law restricted the bunks at the other end to the elite of the camp, the foreman, the clerk and the cook.

A similarly constructed stable held 10 teams and a small storehouse, grainary and root cellar completed the arrangements. In better shanty days the root cellar housed perishable luxuries like butter, shortening, etc. A story goes that a skunk which had burrowed its way into such a root house was disturbed by an unexpected intrusion. Unnerved, the animal distributed its unwelcome perfume making all the food the cellar contained unfit for human consumption. The shanty boys almost starved to death before a fresh supply of food could be cadged in.

In a camboose camp the foreman, who was responsible only to the bush superintendent, was literally "master of all he surveyed." If the foreman was the right kind the shanty was a happy place, if he was a heartless slave driver, the camp was a hell hole. A camp's success was determined by reckoning the expenses it had incurred against the sticks of timber and saw logs it had produced. A debit on the company's ledger meant that next year the foreman must seek employment elsewhere.

Camboos camp sites are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the county, especially in the townships of Harburn, Bruton, Havelock, Eyre and Clyde. While logging for the International Cooperage on their Harburn limits, Mr. W. A. Curry constructed one of his camps on the foundation of a shanty built by the pine loggers. Another is located on Grant's Creek while the foundations of a third may still be seen half a mile up the North Lake portage. The fire tower in Bruton township is built on the old Brunson and Weston depot clearing. Little information about this company whose head office was located at Ottawa is available locally for Brunson and Weston, who had obtained their timber lease even before the township of Bruton was surveyed, drove all their logs down the York branch of the Madawaska to their mills on the Ottawa River.

In the days when pine was king both saw logs and square timbers were prepared for market. The very best pine of all became masts for the king's ships and Haliburton timber carried canvas sails to every port on the face of the globe.

Two five-man gangs of timber makers preceded the saw log cutters through the bush selecting the trees suitable for square timbers or masts. These gangs averaged about six pieces of timber per day equaling 400 cu. ft. In the saw log operation three men chopped down the trees, cutting and topping them square with their axes; the remaining pair sawed the trees into 12 to 16 foot sections required for a sawlog. The early saws must have been both hard to pull and unwieldy for they had no drag teeth. The canthooks too were awkward for they were notched and had to be adjusted to handle large or small logs. Five logs to a tree was considered average and a good cutting gang would produce 75 logs a day, none of them less than 14 inches in diameter at the top. Most of the timber hauled to todays mills would have been culled and left to rot in the bush by the fastidious timber barons.

Fifteen additional men cut the trails and roads over which the oxen and horses hauled the timber felled by the 20 men in the cutting gangs to the frozen streams where they were dumped. The balance of the crew were teamsters and loaders with the exception of the cook and his "devil." (They probably meant bedeviled!)

Cooking equipment in a camboose shanty consisted of half a dozen iron bake kettles for bread and one for beans. These were buried in the hot sand and ashes. The cook determined the temperature of his primitive oven by spitting in the sand. If it sizzled, baking could proceed. Additional equipment consisted of two large pots for heating water and a tea boiler plus a butcher knife and fork.

The shanty clerk issued each logger a tin plate and dish but the crew furnished their own knives and forks. The company provided each man with a blanket so two men usually pooled their covers and slept together. Since the cold rushed through the roof aperature as soon as the fire burned low everyone slept in their clothes using their coats for pillows.

Pork and beans and bread were the staple shanty diet with tea available only to those who paid a dollar a month for the privilege.

Camps were usually so far from the settlements that no one got home from the time they left in the fall until the spring break up. The most fastidious of the loggers utilized their only holiday, Sunday, to mend and launder their clothes. For every one who took the trouble to wash his shirt, or for that matter had an extra shirt to wash, there were three times as many who could be classed with the legions of the great unwashed.

A shanty man's life was beset with perils not the least of which were the high winds which created an extra danger from "widow makers" or rotten limbs blown from the parent trees to fall on the unwary logger. The wrong kind of wind caused great discomfort in the camp also when it blew back the acrid smoke of the camboose fire to sting eyes and clog lungs. By the time the spring came a shantyman's clothing would be so steeped in smoke that their prescene could be detected at great distances. It was said, "by their smell ye shall know them."

Another hazard of camp life was the shantyman's pets, the pestilent bedbug and louse. The wise wife insisted on an all-over bath and complete change of clothing before she admitted her returning logger spouse to the family hearth.

Probably Haliburton county has more colorful characters per populated mile than any other part of Ontario. High on the list one must place the grand old man of Harburn who lived to celebrate his 103rd birthday on December 11, 1939, Mr. George Roche.

Born in Peterboro in 1836, George Roche spent all his life in the logging camps where his fame as a cook became a by-word. His adventurous career included three harrowing trips over the Lachine rapids to Quebec during which he cooked for the crews of the great square timber rafts. He worked for Mossom Boyd in the days when Norman Barnhart was bush superintendent and Tom Preston and Black Alick McDonald were foremen.

Although his culinary skill was hampered by the camboose oven of sand and ashes, George Roche devised a week end treat for his crew by making doughnuts in a kettle of boiling fat. When an apple barrel was filled with the luscious delicacy George Roche rested from his labors. By Sunday morning the barrel would be empty. Fifty shanty boys can consume a lot of doughnuts.!

With the advent of camp cook stoves, George Roche came into his own. He had a way with raisin pie which was the envy of every female cook in the county. At the age of 43 George Roche married for the first time and settled on a farm opposite the Harburn school. No child who forgot his lunch ever went hungry as long as George Roche lived there. His love of all children led him to dispense pie with a lavish hand but for special favorites he reserved the hard scotch mints which he always kept in good supply.

Divine service was of paramount importance to this fine old gentleman and until he had passed his 100th birthday inclement weather never deterred his church attendance.

At one time George Roche had been a river driver of no small skill and as such had often made his way over the slippery logs in the face of white water and angry rapids. In later years Black Alick McDonald nettled Roche by insinuating that he had never known his way about on the logs. In spite of the fact that Roche was wearing bedroom slippers and Black Alick driver's boots, Roche accepted the implied slight to his ability on the logs. "I'm your man, Black Alick, pick your log."

A suitable stick of timber was selected and each man took his position. Skilfully Roche manoeuvred the log until Black Alick lost his footing and fell headlong into the water while his hat floated off down the river. Once a shantyman, always a shantyman and who better equipped to prove it than George Roche.

A favorite expression in the logging camps to describe an all round good man was "He cooked for 75 men and drove the lead team." This might have been George Roche's epitaph.

CIVILIZATION'S MOST CRUCIAL HOUR

We have reached an hour in the history of civilization which I believe is one of the most crucial mankind has ever been called upon to face. We are living in an age in which we see the accumulative consequences of the defects inherent in human nature coming to their climax. Today when you talk to men in the business world, the scientific world, the field of economics, politics or whatever it may be, you find that most thinking, serious-minded people agree that present circumstances are such that they cannot continue very much longer without precipitating a crisis on the greatest scale humanity has ever known.

I am convinced that the solution is to be found in the application of true Christianity to the lives of individuals and nations.

The world of today is divided into two great opposing camps. In one are the individuals and nations whose philosophy of life is wholly materialistic, who not only reject spiritual and moral values ,but who have become openly aggressive in their repudiation of all things that in any way recognize the sovereignty of God, the deity of Jesus Christ and the true Christian way of life. In the other camp are those who still retain at least a nominal recognition of spiritual and moral values. These are the remaining peoples and nations which today comprise our so-called Christian civilization. I use the worl "so-called" purposely, for one of the great tragedies of this generation is the fact that so much of our so-called Christian civilization is entirely undeserving of the name.

What are we going to do about it? It is clear that the solution lies in a return to the place where we make our professed Christianity real. When I say "make our Christianity real," I mean, in the first place, make it personal—take it out of the realm of mere abstract ideologies and bring it down to the basis of a personal, heart relationship with Jesus Christ as a real living Saviour and Divine Lord.

Let's stop merely calling ourselves Christians and do the things that need to be done. Let us get the Bible down from the shelf and give the counsel of God its rightful place of priority in our lives and homes, and in the councils of our land.

In recent years, Alberta has become known internationally as the great oil producing province of Canada, but every time I look at an oil well and see the pump going up and down and the oil flowing from the pipe, I say to myself, "Some day that well will be pumped dry, but there is a cruse of oil which will never run dry, but which will flow on forever and ever."

We should be anxious for people to know about that oil which in the lamp of God's Word produces a light that shines across the darkness of this world that men may find their way to Jesus Christ, the One Who alone can save and Who can solve their problems, whatever they may be.

—Hon. Ernest C. Manning, Premier of Alberta, Canada.

OBITUARY

Rev. John Hoyle

Well known as the owner of Camp GayVenture, the Rev. John Hoyle passed away on Tuesday, October 18 in the Haliburton Red Cross Hospital.

Mr. Hoyle had been ill for some years but lately seemed to be improving when he suffered a stroke from which he did not recover.

In 1946 Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle, after looking at many sites throughout Ontario, chose a property in Haliburton on which to open a children's camp, a long cherished dream. Unfortunately after the first summer while the family was living here a serious fire destroyed the main lodge. The following spring, although Mr. Hoyle had only been a resident here for a year, a great many families in the district rallied to his assistance, each giving a day's free labor to help in rebuilding.

Born at Marin, Spain where his father was a missionary, Mr. Hoyle was educated in Switzerland and England before coming to Canada in 1911.

During World War I he served with the 2nd Canadian Machine Gun Brigade, and after being discharged began studying in the field of religious education.

Having completed work in six universities and acquiring a Batchelor of Pedagogy and Master of Arts degrees he moved to Toronto, joined the United church and was appointed general secretary of the Toronto Religious Education Council from 1929-1940. Here he made an outstanding contribution working with young people.

His book "Towards the Understanding of Youth" which is in its seventh printing, has been used as a textbook interdenominationally throughout Canada and the U.S.

During World War II, unable to go overseas, Mr. Hoyle became chaplain and revolver instructor for the 2nd Battalion of the Irish Regiment of Canada.

For six years Mr. Hoyle directed the educational programs of Yorkminster Baptist Church and was then regretfully released to start his own camp, an area in which his experiences extended over a period of 40 years directing and counseling in camps of every variety. More recently he was president of the Ontario Camping Association for four years.

He attended Lochlin United Church and as much as he was able gave of his time and experience whenever it was solicited. He leaves behind many friends; his influence and greatness of heart will be a guide and inspiration to many young people.

Driven the new Volkswagen yet? She's loads of fun.

More and more people are having the time of their life driving the new VW. There's 10% more power. The new Volkswagen leaps away at lights as if it was going to a fire. You can put your foot down anytime you like, in any gear you like, and really take off. The engine torque is increased too. There's more power to call on in every gear—passing is safer and faster. And now that first gear is synchronized, the Volkswagen's easier than ever to drive. You can shift straight down to first gear without stopping the car. This eliminates a lot of unnecessary stopping and starting. (Women drivers especially will like this change!.

All four gear ratios have been modified to take advantage of the new engine's output. You can thread your way through heavy traffic or give it its head on the highway. In any gear, the new Volkswagen's a lot more fun to drive.

There's more luggage space in the new car too; 10 cubic feet in all. A full 5 up front and another 5 behind the back seat. Some of these improvements in the De Luxe Volkswagen are also in the Custom model.

There's so much to say about the new car, why not get it first hand. Take her out tonight; she's waiting, bright and shining, at your VW dealer.

After a selection of recorder playing by the pupils, Mr. Neil Wilson introduced Mr. Frost. Mr. Frost commented on the growth of the community and reminisced about its beginning. He pointed out the ever increasing need for schools throughout the province, declared the school officially open, and granted a school holiday on Friday, October 7 in recognition of the event. Mr. Chas. Hodgson, reeve of Somervile township, thanked Mr. Frost.

The audience was entertained at this point with a piano solo by Lucky Taylor, a grade VIII first class honor graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music.

The teaching staff was then introduced and a bouquet of roses was presented by Mrs. Austin to Miss I. Gilmour, retired teacher, in recognition of her many years of teaching in the village.

A flag was presented to the school on behalf of the Kinmount branch of the Canadian Legion by Mr. N. Gilmour, president.
